The question asked by men since Adam agreed to taste the apple. Sheli Ellsworth in her new book doesn't answer the question, but she does give us a rib tickling insight into how women approach and respond to life's many opportunities. In twenty-four story stories we meet such characters as Bob the fly, experience the draw of shame, and grapple with paper thongs. (Are there really such things?) Her gift to us is to help us laugh at her characters and ultimately ourselves. I don't particularly like the cover, but I would say this is an excellent example of the cliché, don't judge a book by its cover. Her gems are worth flipping Sigmund to find the real treasure. The eBook is good for a quick access, short read and a good chuckle. The real benefit, I think, is Sheli's hardback book. If you are looking for a gift for that special woman in your life be it wife, sister, cousin, aunt, business associate or friend, this is it. What better gift can you give than a good laugh? Who couldn't laugh at a conversation with the gastro guy? 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Brilliantly written!! By Sandy Y. This is a book that anyone would love to read! Anytime I went to read it, I knew it would pick me up and put me in a great, humorous mood. Shelli does an excellent job at making you feel like you are there and laughing with her at those experiences that would normally drive you insane. You will wish she was your neighbor/best friend. I didn't want the last chapter to end. Please write a memoir for your fans. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Humor IS the Best Medicine By Susan Sheli has yet again done a wonderful job in expressing her everyday life experiences in a funny entertaining way (several of which I could identify with). While I'm typically not a "reader", I found this book entertaining enjoyed the reading experience. NICE JOB SHELI!

The stories about everyday situations by award winning author, Sheli Ellsworth, target women, ages 35-80. Sheli Ellsworth has a master's degree in psychology she uses mainly to annoy family and friends. After many years traveling the world as a Navy wife, she lives with her husband and children in Southern California where she hikes, writes articles, short stories and professional book reviews. More of Sheli's sardonic wit can be seen on her blog, Dear Miss Betty—advice for those who need to be slapped. Go to dearmissbetty.com. Some of the 24 Chapters: Plump Shiny Lips Anyone? Have you ever used a cosmetic that resulted in disaster? I have a friend who gets Restalyne. Her lips look like dinner rolls right now. One-ply Low Flow Way-to-go My plumber set me straight, "Lady you need to either use cheaper TP or put me on retainer. You can't afford my hourly rate." The Pumpkin Master Who knew pumpkin carving had become an Olympic sport? Ladybug Lesson Okay, the directions did say to go outdoors before opening. Closet of Guilt I knew that eventually I would have to face my worst fear. Bob Some houseflies come and go. Bob loved me. Remember the Alamo Salmonella poisoning brought us closer. The Lemonade Diet Gallons of lemonade with cayenne pepper lowered my IQ at least 20 points but I looked good. The Walnut Polish Was my husband trying to kill me with spa gift cards? Was Prell "Product"? Life was different before "product." Aquanet may have been my first addiction. My Drawer of Shame What the heck do I do with all of these old cell phones I like better than the current one? Hiking Safety Who knew my father-in-law had an axe handle collection even Lizzie Borden would envy. Rodent Rescue In retrospect, leaving the injured squirrel in a box for my husband to find was probably a bad decision. Conejo Chronicles I had always loved bunnies . . . but now their mafia cousins were after me. This was war! Vittles for Visitors No one eats normal food anymore. I was shopping for organic fruit that looked as natural as a European armpit. Hiking with Mary She was afraid of everything. The Great Colon Caper How many people can write a funny story about their colonoscopy? The Pug, the Button, the Insanity Pugsley was smarter than I was. The Fundraiser Who knew that my husband's yoga adventure would get me to the opera? Raising Chinchillas My parents-in-law are always entertaining. Beep Beep If you are going to confront me in the parking lot, you better not have a face like the end of an Oscar Meyer wiener. Revenge of the Sugar Plum Fairy One wish at the Nutcracker ballet and I'm digging through eggshells, cat litter and coffee grounds. Weightloss 101 There are only three things necessary to stay in shape: A car with a standard transmission, a two-story house and a thirsty dog with a small bladder.... Each chapter is filled with hilarious details from her life experiences from her drawer of shame in her nightstand to her father giving her an axe handle to hike with for safety. If you want to feel good and to smile, I recommend reading Sometimes I Pee when I Laugh. Staci Brown The Ventura Breeze
